Dr. Tim Oeltmann:

Private Practice

- Retired Lt. Commander, US Marine Corps and Physician to the President of the United States

Washington DC

Dr. Timothy R Oeltmann, MD is in private practice, having just retired after 16 years in the US Marine Corps as a Lt. Commander and Aerospace Medicine specialist, most recently serving as a flight surgeon and naval aviator to the President of the United States, with offices at Marine Base Quantico and Andrews Air Force Base. A 2004 graduate of Vanderbilt's School of Medicine, Dr. Oeltmann was awarded the 2007 Luehrs Memorial Award for excellence in operational aviation medical practice. Tim and his wife Michelle reside in Washington DC, with their two junior high school sons - Ethan and Davis. He is also a proud member of the Dominion Hops team in the MedStar Capitals Iceplex Adult Hockey League.

Michelle Oeltmann:

Vice President, Services & Delivery

Syndigo

Nashville and Washington DC

With more than two decades of experience as an analyst and technology executive, Michelle

Oeltmann is a frequently cited leader and mentor in her field. Managing two teams and business products totaling more than $9M+ annually, Michelle divides her team between her Washington DC office and Syndigo's world headquarters in Nashville.

Syndigo, a leading technology-driven product information and syndication company, provides unified solutions for content management, syndication, analytics and verified product information. Married to Dr. Tim Oeltmann and the mother of two junior high school sons at Washington Episcopal School, Michelle and her family were selected as one of Disney's Points of Light Volunteer Families of the Year in 2019, for their work on behalf of a wide range of charities and philanthropies.

Gregory Bowman:

Vice President, Strategy, Growth & Partnerships

Siemens (a Fortune 100 Company)

Crystal City, Virginia

- (retired Colonel, US Army & former Pentagon official)

Now a senior executive at Siemens - the nation's 70th company on the Fortune 100 list - retired Colonel Gregory Bowman has a broad background in law; government policy; Congressional relations; Federal procurement; strategic-level military, defense and commercial leadership; and global energy/infrastructure programs. Before joining Siemens in 2016, Greg served as the Legislative Counsel to the Secretary of the Army and as the Army's senior Congressional Liaison to the House and Senate. Prior to his service at the Pentagon, Colonel Bowman served in Baghdad as a Judge Advocate and senior legal advisor to the 1st Armored Division and led and managed a 50 person law office serving Fort Knox. He obtained his Juris Doctorate from the University of Virginia School of Law in 1993. Greg and his wife reside in Northern Virginia with their high school daughter.

Kristin Allstadt:

Amazon - Amazon Web Services (AWS)

Herndon, VA and Washington, DC

Recently recruited to help lead the growing expansion of Amazon Web Services (AWS) in the Greater Washington region and their Worldwide Public Sector, Kristin Allstadt is an executive with decades of experience working with some of the world's most recognizable names in business and strategic consulting, including PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC), Target, IBM, Deloitte and, most recently, McKinsey & Company. A 1998 MBA International Business graduate of the Thunderbird School of Global Management, Kristin is a recognized leader in strategy, management consulting and business transformation. The mother of a 7th-grade daughter at Washington's Maret School and one dog, Kristin and her family reside in Washington DC.

Kelli Arena:

Chief, Strategic Communications

National Security Agency

Fort Meade, Maryland

Kelli Arena serves as the head of Strategic Communications for the National Security Agency, the 40,000 employee classified national intelligence agency of the Department of Defense. Working closely with the CIA, DNI, NSC, FBI and Department of Justice, Kelli oversees all media and stakeholder engagement, while providing strategic advice and counsel to the NSA Director. Prior to her appointment to the National Security Agency in 2017, Kelli served as the Executive Director of the Global Center for Journalism and Democracy at Sam Houston State University in Texas. A recognizable face to many television viewers, Kelli Arena rose from the ranks as a manager for Lou Dobbs and the CNN Business News unit to an award-winning CNN correspondent covering Wall Street, business, economics and the Department of Justice for 23 years in Washington and New York City. She and her family are active in their church and serve in a variety of volunteer positions. Kelli and her husband Ron Couvillian reside in Maryland, with their high school son Evan and two daughters in college.

Kathleen Koch:

Founder/Executive Director

Leaders Link

- Author & Expert on Resilience, Crisis Response & Disaster Planning

Kathleen Koch is a noted national and international speaker and the founder and executive director of LeadersLink, the first organization to harness and share elected officials' disaster lessons learned to help other cities prevent, prepare for and recover from similar crises. The author of the award-winning bestseller RISING FROM KATRINA: HOW MY MISSISSIPPI HOMETOWN LOST IT ALL AND FOUND WHAT MATTERED, Kathleen draws on her more than two decades as a Washington DC-based award-winning White House, Capitol Hill, Pentagon and State Department television correspondent for CNN, NBC News' Washington affiliate, Group W and the US State Department's US Information Agency. Kathleen and her family reside in Maryland, while her professional work takes her around the globe and her volunteer work stretches from service on the University of Southern Mississippi's School of Mass Communications Advisory Board to the Philippines and Japan, where she led an international campaign to support survivors of the 2011 earthquake and tsunami.
